Childhood Trauma

Introductory Notes

The Magical Train in the Enchanted Forest for Childhood Trauma

Welcome to your session for overcoming the trauma of witnessing an inappropriate event.

The most important thing to remember is the fact that you are not alone. There are people here, and people in the world, who are always here to support and guide you.

All you need to do during this session is close your eyes and relax. You are safe here in this place. No one can harm you. You are happy and safe. I will personally guide you into this place, where you can overcome anything hurtful.

Today all we are going to do is play a little game. All you have to do is listen and close your eyes. If you get sleepy, that is perfectly fine. Your very smart brain will pay attention for you, whether you are awake or asleep.

So now, close your eyes and relax. Remember, you are safe here in this place.

Short pause. PAUSE

Now that you are relaxed, I want to invite you to a very special place. This very special place is kind of like an amusement park. I'm sure you can remember a time when you had fun at an amusement park.

If you can't remember a time, just remember a time when you had fun somewhere. Maybe a playground, or a park.

This is a very special place. This amusement park is surrounded by an invisible fence of protection. What that means is that anything you choose to do here is perfectly safe.

So, imagine yourself here in this fun place. The weather is warm, and the sun is shining

So, imagine yourself here in this fun place. The weather is warm, and the sun is shining bright. You are here with your parents or with someone you trust. All you are going to do here is play and have fun.

The first ride you see is a wonderful train. The train is brightly colored. There is music playing in the background that makes you feel good.

As you walk up to this train, the conductor greets you and your parents or whoever you happen to be with. You like this person.

She is kind and sweet. She invites you onto the train, and you and your guide, take a seat. You are looking forward to this adventure. You know, wherever the train goes, you are safe. The magic train protects you.

If you do happen to see anything scary, you don't have to worry. You are protected on the train. No one can enter the train once the train starts moving.

As the train slowly starts along the tracks, you smile. You are relaxed and ready for this adventure.

As the train glides along the track, it makes a clickity-clack noise. This noise is very relaxing.

It's all you can hear.

And the train goes by many different things. You see fields of flowers and little houses. You see a tiny little church. You also go by a beautiful lake.

You're going further and further away. But you know you are still safe.

In the distance, there is an enchanted forest, and the train begins moving toward the forest. And you can see everything very clearly. And now the train is headed into the forest.

You still feel very safe. You focus on the sound of the metal wheels on the track.

Now, it's important to remember that while you may have had some unpleasant experiences here, whatever or whoever caused this experience is long gone.

You are safe. That experience is gone.

If anyone has caused anyone harm in this magical forest, they have been taken away and locked up. They can't hurt anyone anymore. They can't hurt you. You are always safe here in this enchanted forest.

The train begins moving into the forest. You don't feel any fear. You know you are safe. The trees in the forest are very protective of you.

The trees have all agreed to watch out for you, and any other children who come into this enchanted forest.

You feel safe and warm.

Now the train moves a little further into the forest. It feels wonderful to feel so safe. The trees smell good. You like the smell of the forest.

As the train continues along the track, you see that in the very middle of the forest is a beautiful tall white castle. This castle has a drawbridge and a moat. If you look closer, you can see the shape of the doors and the windows.

The train moves a little closer to the castle. And you see the castle as the train moves closer to it. This beautiful white castle is a grand place. You feel so relaxed now. You feel so safe.

Now the train stops. The conductor invites everyone on the train to tour the castle.

The conductor says, Welcome to the Enchanted Castle.

If you like, you can invite someone to explore it with you. Perhaps your mom or your dad or whoever you are with. This sounds like a wonderful idea.

You and your parent, or trusted adult, spend time walking around the castle. It is very big.

You come to the drawbridge and walk over it. You enter the castle.

As you go into the castle, you are amazed at the size of the rooms. There are so many places for you to explore. You and your guest look around. You see that this castle has been standing for thousands of years, and nothing has changed.

What you don't realize is that this is a castle of transformation. Just by walking into the castle, you can easily overcome any feelings of fear that may have previously hurt you.

You continue to explore, room after room after room. You begin to feel happier and happier. You are fearless.

You feel no dark feelings. Whatever you might have been afraid of it, is now gone. The person who scared you is long gone. You are always safe in the forest. The trees have agreed to protect you, and your friends.

And, of course, you don't play in the forest without your mom or dad or without someone to guide you.

If you do choose to walk near the forest, you immediately feel safe. That is the best part of this adventure.

And after a long while, you feel tired. You and your trusted adult friend or parent get back on the train for the ride home.

The train sounds wonderful.

You continue to listen to the sound of the wheels on the track. It is a lovely sound.

As you rest and relax, while riding the train, you hear a soft voice in the distance whispering:

You are safe.

You are strong.

You are always protected, wherever you go.

Nothing can hurt you.

No one can hurt you.

You are a good person.

You are brave.

You are courageous.

You are a superhero.

You are a superhero

You can let the dark feelings go. It's a wonderful, happy feeling. From now on, whenever you feel frightened, you remember that you are safe.

The past does not need to dictate the future of your life.

You hold the power to heal and thrive.

You are strong.

You are in control of your feelings.

You can forgive others who hurt you in your past so that you can let go and live with freedom!

You are able to create a safe and welcoming environment for yourself now.

You are worthy of love and good treatment.

It has been a wonderful day here in this amusement park. The train ride has been very special. You are looking forward to coming back.

And you know that whenever you need to feel safe, you close your eyes and remember this journey on the magical train in your dreams.

Whenever you want to ride the train, you can always do that. When you close your eyes and imagine yourself on the train, you hear the lovely sound:

clickity-clack

And with that, you always feel better. You deserve to feel good. You are special. You are safe. You are protected. You are loved.

The train has now arrived back at the amusement park. It has been a wonderful day. You feel happy and safe.
