WHAT WE COVERED

This was our first deep inner child session — the work we have been building toward across all four sessions. Here is what we accomplished:

1. We identified the specific root cause: Your discomfort in group settings does not come from the people in the group. It comes from emotional mapping — your subconscious is replaying an old relationship pattern. Specifically, your uncle was both supportive and physically frightening, which created a fused emotional response: fear and admiration mixed together. That pattern now activates whenever anyone gets close. Your conscious mind knows the people around you are safe. Your subconscious insists the situation mirrors past harm. That conflict is what creates the anxiety.
2. We addressed why the reframing was fading: The protector energy and helper reframe from our earlier sessions worked for about a week and a half before feeling forced. This is normal. Beliefs formed over long periods become neurologically cemented. Conscious reframing can catch the pattern but cannot erase it — because the belief is stored in your body (your nervous system, your cells), not just in your thoughts. To reach those deeper patterns, we need to work in a hypnotic state, which is exactly what we did tonight.
3. We performed inner child work under hypnosis: I guided you into a deeply relaxed state using the same techniques from Session 2 (breathing, affirmations, countdown, staircase). From that deep state, we did several things:
   - You externalized your negative feelings onto a screen in a private screening room — draining the color, shrinking the images, until they became meaningless pixelated symbols with no power over you
   - You located where in your body the abandonment feeling physically lives, and used that sensation as a compass to travel back to its origin
   - Your adult self moved through the mist of the past and met a younger version of you — the child who formed two core beliefs: "I am not worth being here for" and "I must be causing the anger"
   - Your adult self corrected those beliefs directly: the events were not the child's fault. The child was pure and innocent. The guilt and shame are not his to carry.
   - We acknowledged and thanked the protective part of you — the firewall and watchtower that kept you safe for years — and communicated that the adult is now in charge of protection. Your right index finger lifted on its own to signal the subconscious agreed.
   - You built a safe room, brought the child into it, and the two of you integrated — embracing, holding hands, becoming one. You nodded to confirm it felt complete.

WHAT YOU REPORTED AFTER

You described feeling "more complete" immediately after emerging from the session. This is exactly the right response. The integration of the adult and child self creates a sense of wholeness that the defensive separation was preventing.

KEY CONCEPTS FROM THIS SESSION

Emotional mapping: Your subconscious maps present-day social situations onto childhood experiences with your uncle. The people are different, but the pattern recognition system treats them the same. This is not a flaw — it is your nervous system doing what it was trained to do. Tonight we began retraining it.

Somatic storage: The beliefs "I am not worth staying for" and "I must be causing the anger" are stored in your body, not just your mind. That is why thinking-based tools catch the pattern but cannot erase it. The trance state accesses where the belief actually lives.

Defensive strategy honored: Your withdrawal, distrust, and isolation were not character flaws. They were a rational survival mechanism built when no other options existed. We did not fight that system tonight — we thanked it and showed it that the adult is now capable of taking over.

Integration: The child and the adult are no longer separated. The child's sensitivity, curiosity, and capacity for feeling are gifts. The adult's strength and evidence are the protection the child always needed. Both exist in you now — together, not at war.

PROGRESS ACROSS FOUR SESSIONS

MARKER	S1 (OCT 8)	S2 (OCT 16)	S3 (OCT 24)	S4 (NOV 6)
Observer stance	Not present	"Easier to watch thoughts"	Sustained + applied at work	Observer + somatic awareness
Trigger response	Reactive, automatic	"Armor or shield"	Handled angry visitors calmly	Root cause identified + addressed in trance
Root understanding	6 symptoms listed	Betrayal + abandonment	Abandonment + alienation	Uncle emotional mapping (fear + admiration fused)
Subconscious access	None (conscious only)	First trance (tribe circle)	No trance (psychoeducation)	Full inner child reparenting in trance
Integration	—	Tribe circle sealed	—	Adult-child integration confirmed (nod + "more complete")

UPDATED TREATMENT PLAN

#	FOCUS	STATUS
1	Assessment + intake + suggestibility + EFT introduction	Completed (Oct 8)
2	Identity reframing + tribe circle + anchor installation	Completed (Oct 16)
3	Deep check-in + root wound identification + phased plan	Completed (Oct 24)
4	Inner child reparenting + integration + defensive strategy release	Completed (Nov 6)
5	Cord cutting or cord realignment with uncle figure	Next session
6	Circle Therapy: systematic desensitization of group triggers	Upcoming
7	Self-hypnosis teaching + integration + graduation	Upcoming

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT (SESSION 5)

Session 5 depends on how the integration settles over the next week. Here is what we are considering:

- Cord cutting: If the uncle figure still holds emotional weight, we use a hypnotherapy technique to release the emotional dependency — like a respectful divorce. Full independence while honoring what was good.
- Cord realignment: If the relationship cannot or should not be fully severed, we establish healthy boundaries and forgiveness while maintaining the connection.
- Circle Therapy: Systematic desensitization of your group triggers — practicing staying calm while triggers are introduced in trance. Each cycle weakens the old wiring.
- Your feedback from this week determines which approach we take.

YOUR HOMEWORK BEFORE SESSION 5

Four things before our next session:

1. Before sleep each night — the most important practice:
   Enter a relaxed, trance-like state (close your eyes, slow breathing, let your body settle). Repeat the core messages from our session: the child's defensive mechanisms served their purpose but are no longer needed. The adult is now in charge of protection. The child is safe. The child is integrated. You are complete.
   This is when your subconscious is most receptive. The deeper reprogramming happens here, not during the day.
2. During the day — continue conscious reframing:
   When triggered, use the anchor (thumb + forefinger, right hand), the rescuer-helper reframe, and the self-esteem toolkit. Understand that daytime reframing is supplementary — it catches the pattern while the pre-sleep work erases it.
3. Listen to the session recording:
   I will send you the recording from tonight. Listen at least once, ideally before sleep. Each listen deepens the reparenting pathway. You can also repeat the key affirmations yourself as you listen.
4. Notice what changes this week:
   In your Tuesday group, in your daily interactions, at work — notice what feels different. Even small shifts matter. Is the wall thinner? Is the anxiety lower? Do compliments land differently? Do not force anything. Just observe. And email me your observations before our next session.

YOUR TOOLS (FULL STACK)

RIGHT hand anchor:	Thumb + forefinger. One press, one breath. Contains: tribe circle, golden armor, workshop, integrated child. Use daily + anytime you need steadiness.
Protector energy:	When someone is difficult: "they are struggling." Supplementary tool — works at conscious level.
Breathing affirmation:	"I am [word 1] and I am [word 2] and I like it." Three breaths, morning and bedtime.
Pre-sleep reparenting:	Relaxed state before sleep. Repeat core messages. This is where the deep work happens.
Self-Esteem Toolkit:	Catch It, Name It, Flip It template + Physiological Sigh (two inhales + one long exhale).
Session recording:	Listen before sleep. Each listen deepens the integration.

IMPORTANT REMINDERS

Inner child work can bring things to the surface over the next few days. Memories, emotions, vivid dreams — this is normal subconscious processing. If anything feels overwhelming:

1. Anchor: Thumb + forefinger, right hand. One breath.
2. Physiological Sigh: Two quick inhales + one long slow exhale. Repeat 2-3 times.
3. Email me: jeeth@vrishihypno.com — I will respond within 24 hours.
4. If urgent or in crisis: Call or text 988 (Suicide and Crisis Lifeline). Available 24/7. You are not alone. And after tonight — neither is the child.
